First Question :- Reading

(5 marks)

Read the following Passage and answer the questions with true (✓) or False (X) :-

Energy is the ability to do work. When a hammer strikes a nail, it exerts a force on the nail that causes it to move. The movement of the hammer has the ability to do work and therefore has a form of energy that we call Kinetic energy. An object may have energy not only because of its motion but also because of its position or shape. Water in a dam is another example of potential energy. There are many types of Kinetic and potential energy, including chemical, thermal, mechanical, electrical, and nuclear energy. Thermal energy may be defined as the kinetic energy of molecules. When a substance is heated, the molecules move faster, which causes that substance to feel hot.
